TEXT

MR. WHITE COMES AGAIN

It is Saturday afternoon. Doctor Sandford is in his study.
 Betty knocks.

“Come in, please. What is it, Betty?”

“Mr. White wants to see you, Henry.”

“Well, yes. Show him in please.” (Mr. White enters.)

“Good afternoon, doctor.”

“Good afternoon, Mr. White.”

“I’m terribly sorry to trouble you.”

"That's all right. Glad to see you. Sit down, please. What can I do for you?"

"Do you receive the Times?"

"Certainly."

"Would you like to have it for the next year?"

"Oh, I forget. We never remember such things in time. Must I pay anything right now?"

"No you needn't. For the present, you can sign this paper. Here you are."

"Where do I sign?"

"Here, please. Thank you, doctor."

"Well, Mr. White. It's five o'clock. You'll have some tea with us, won't you?"

"Thank you. I'd be glad to."

"Let's go to the dining-room. This way, please."
